

I don't know why people hate flying

I've always liked it

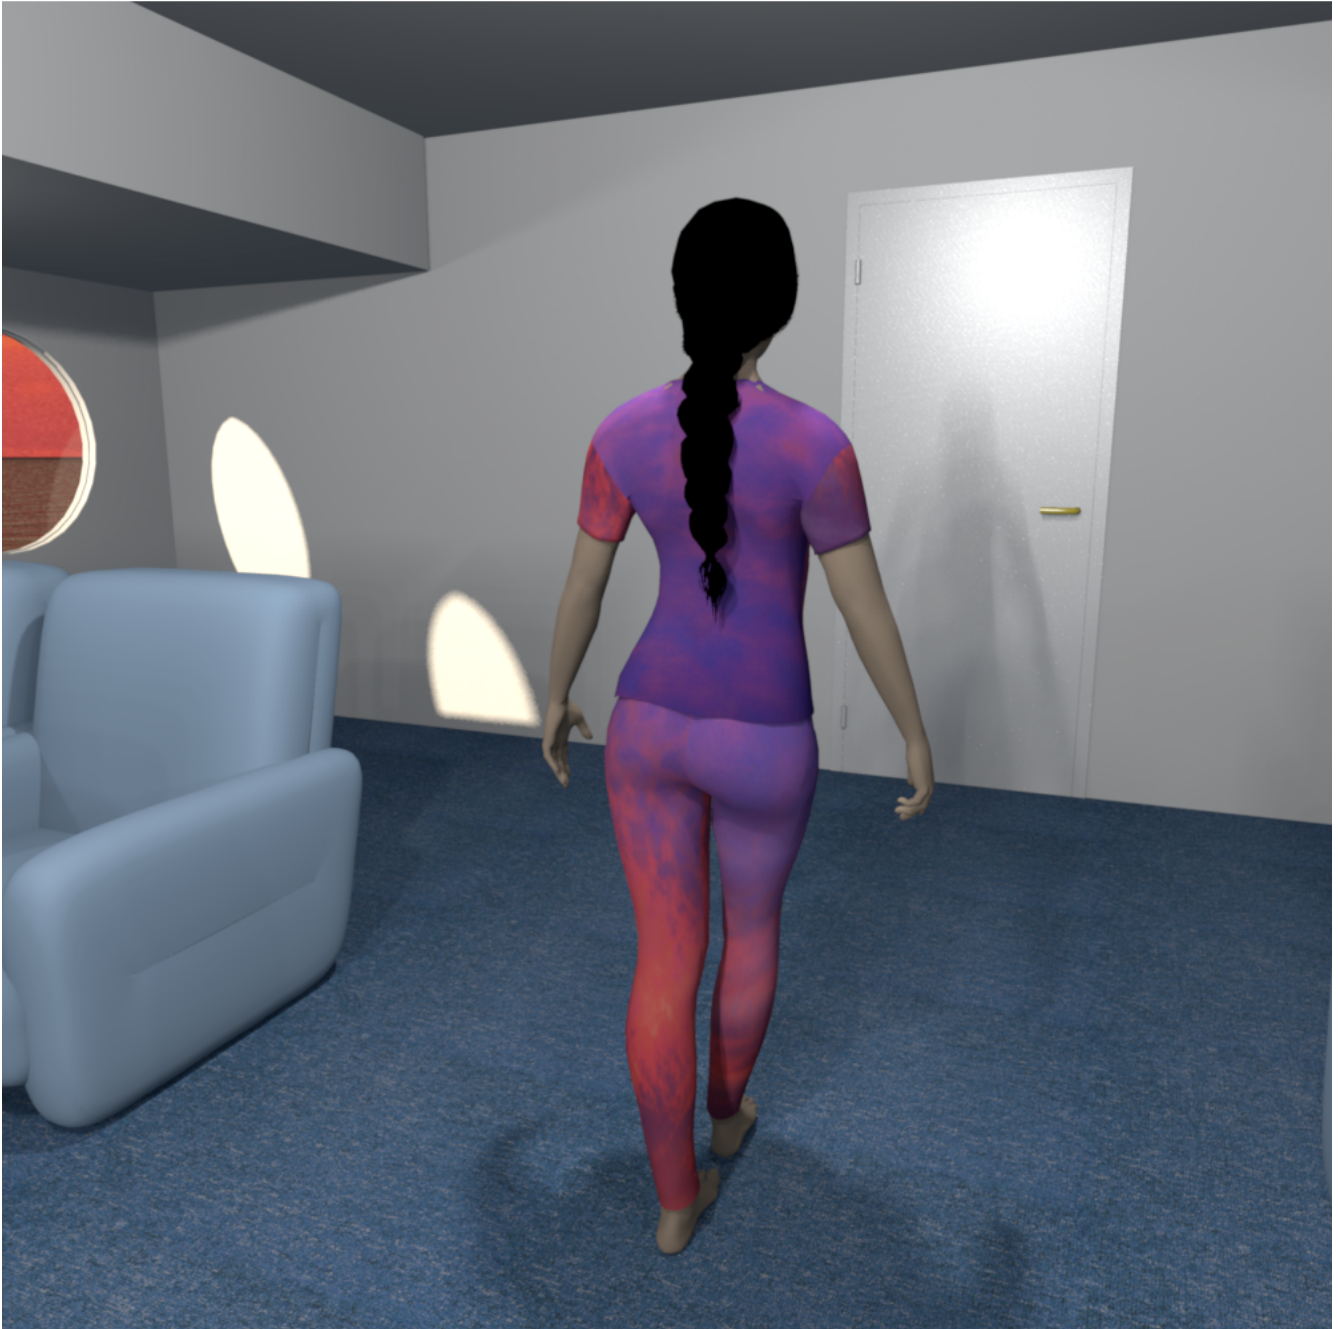

It's comfortable

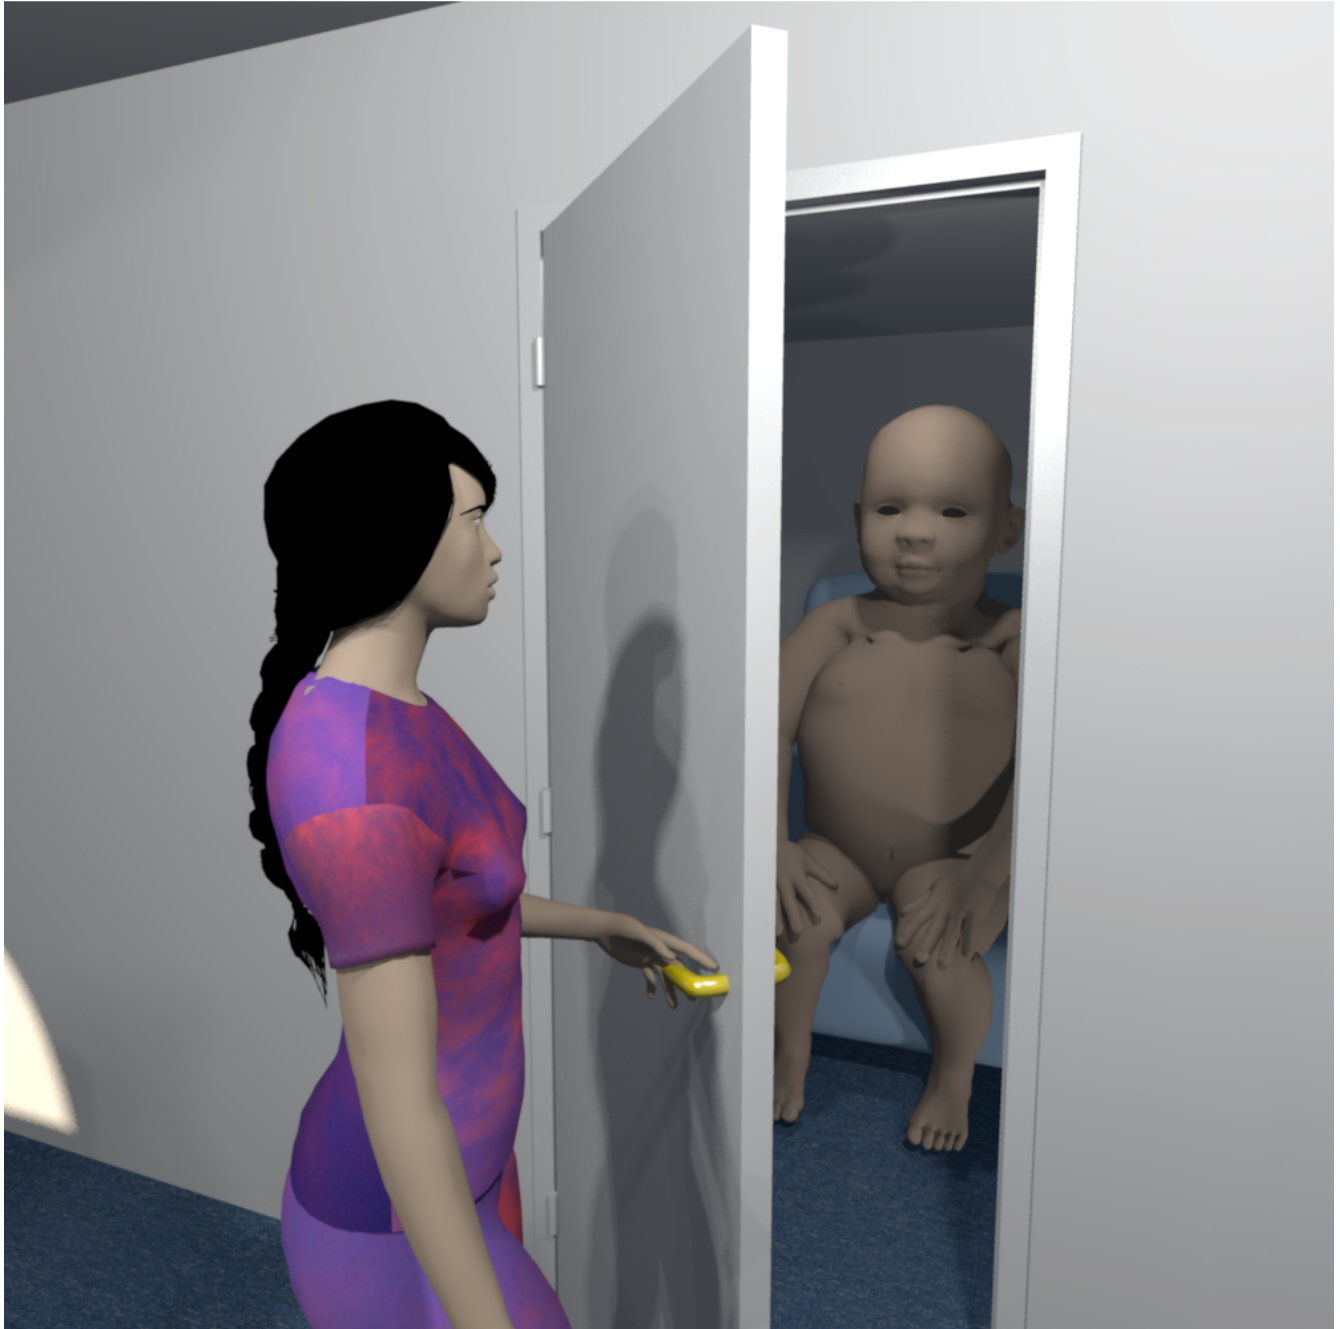

Spacious

The only thing that worries me is the baby

The baby was here before good and evil, before being and nonbeing

At least it's not crying right now

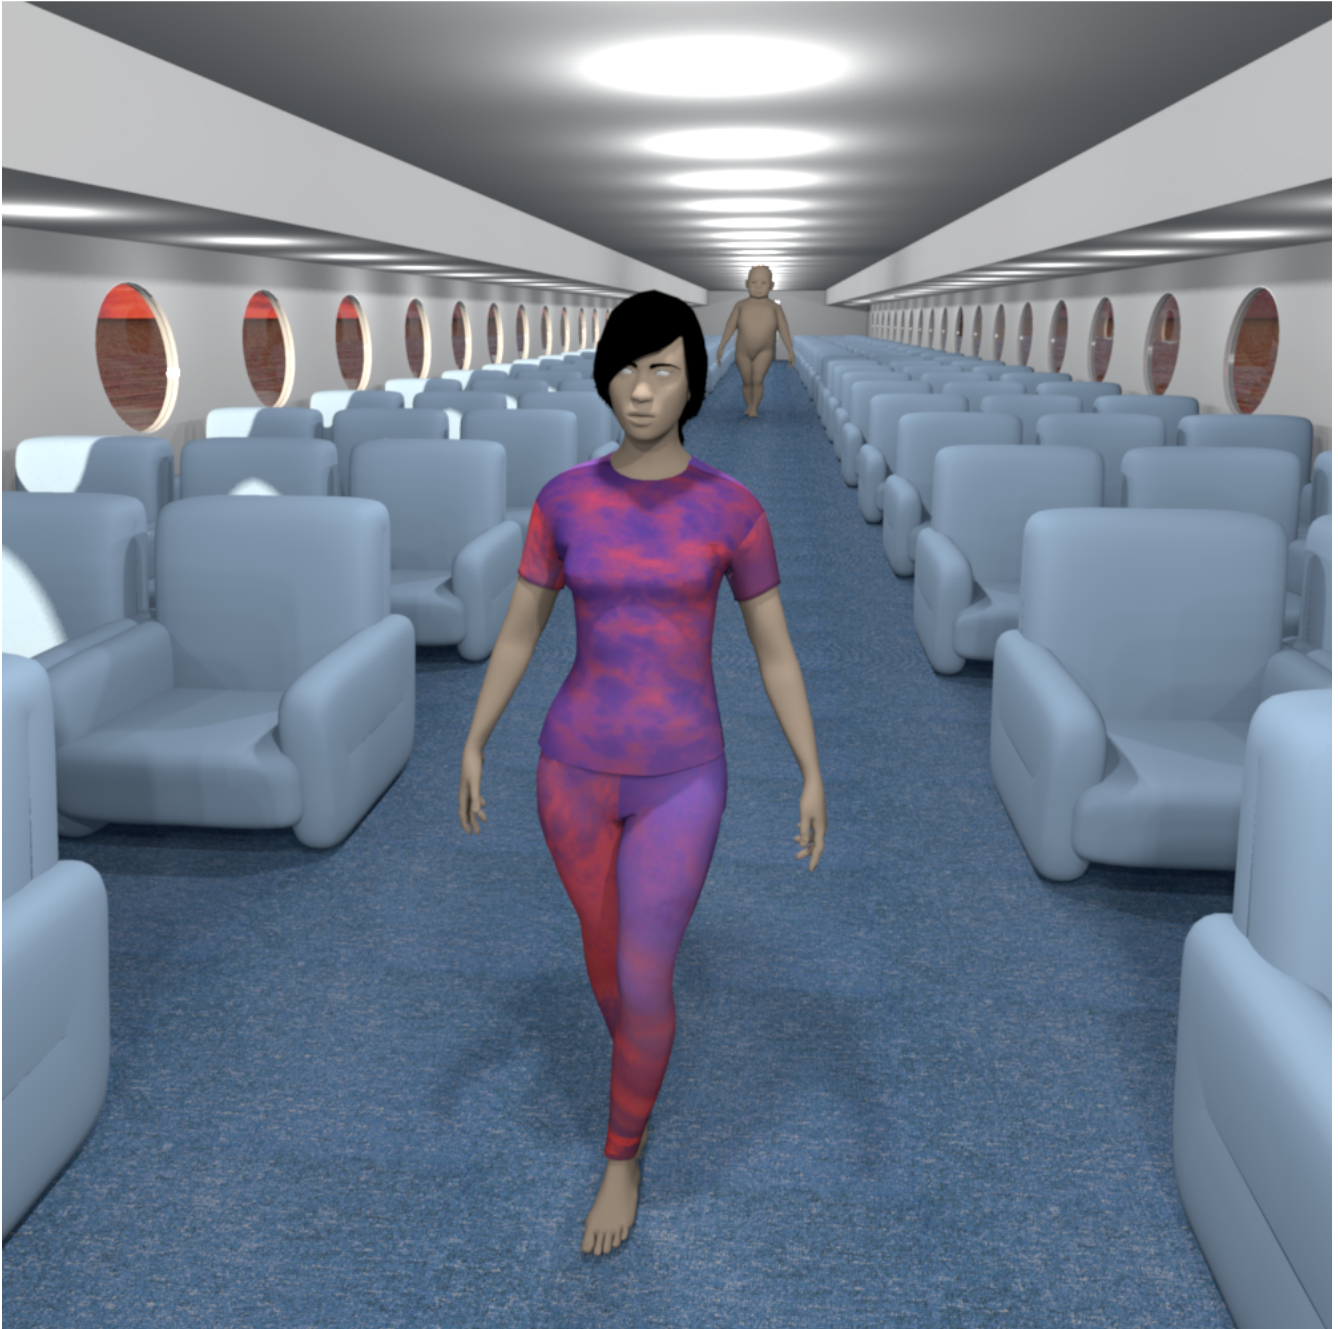

I like it when it's quiet

Though I've flown often, there is one thing I've never tried

I've never seen the cockpit before

I wonder if I can get in Can't hurt to try

It's unlocked

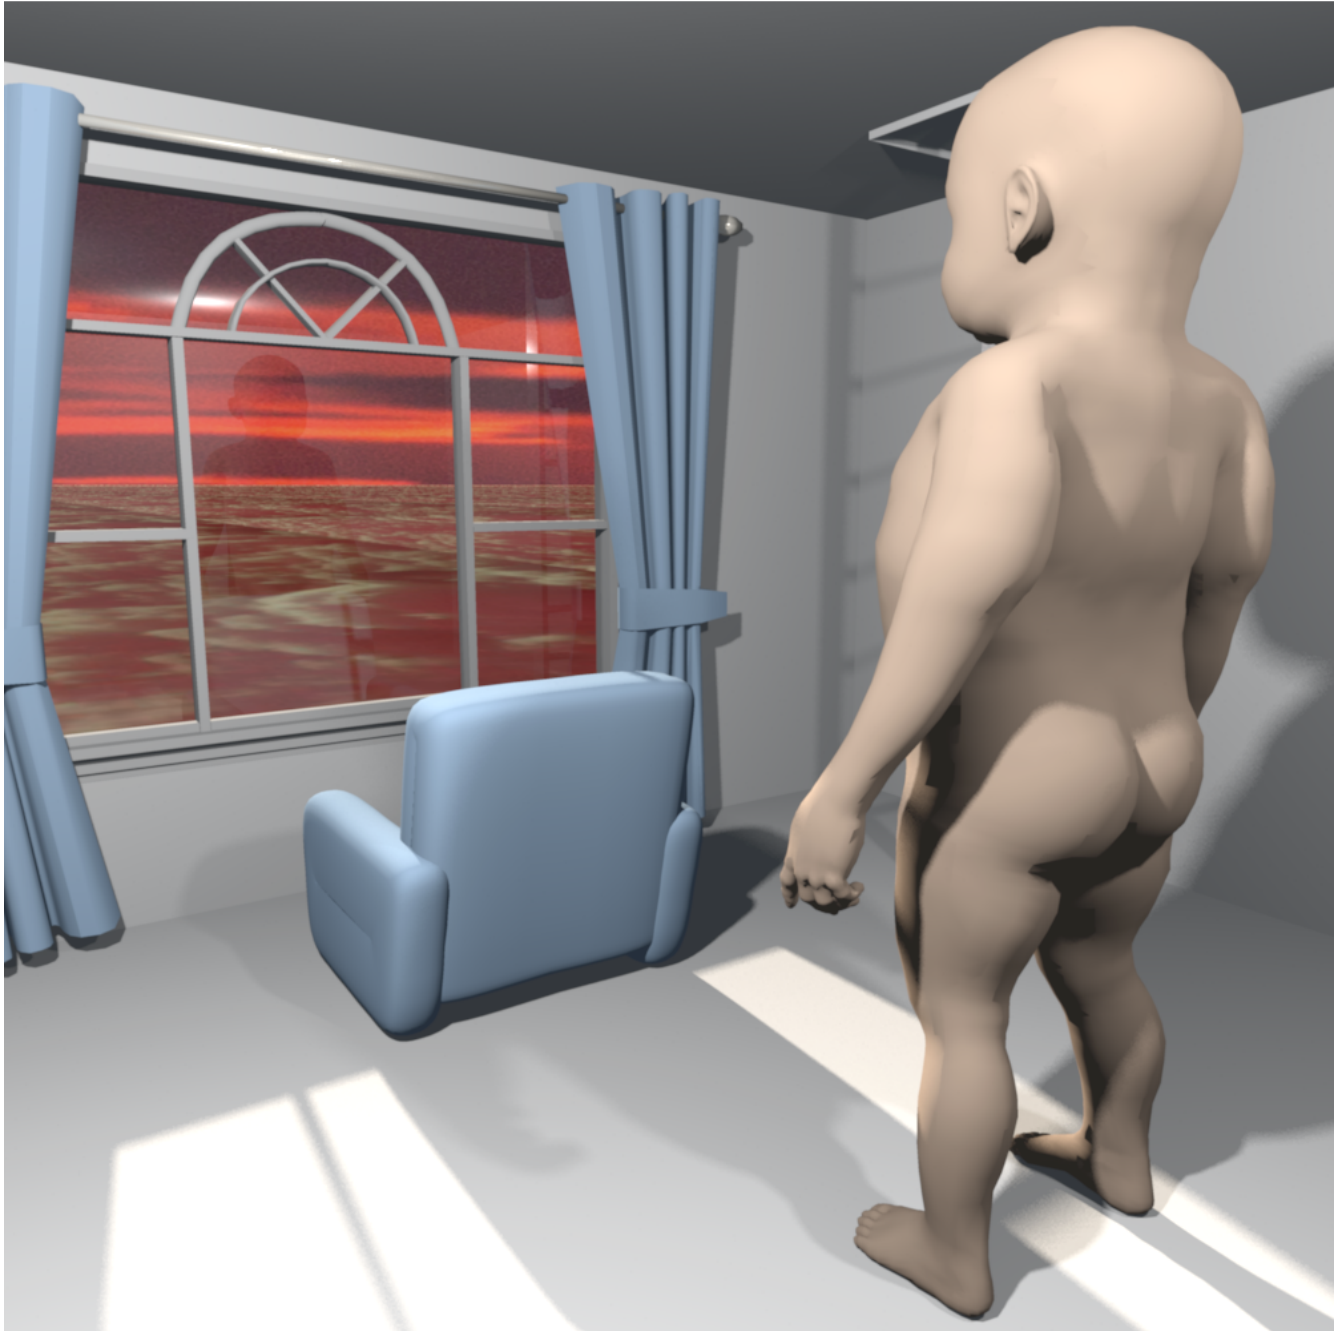

It's emptier than I expected

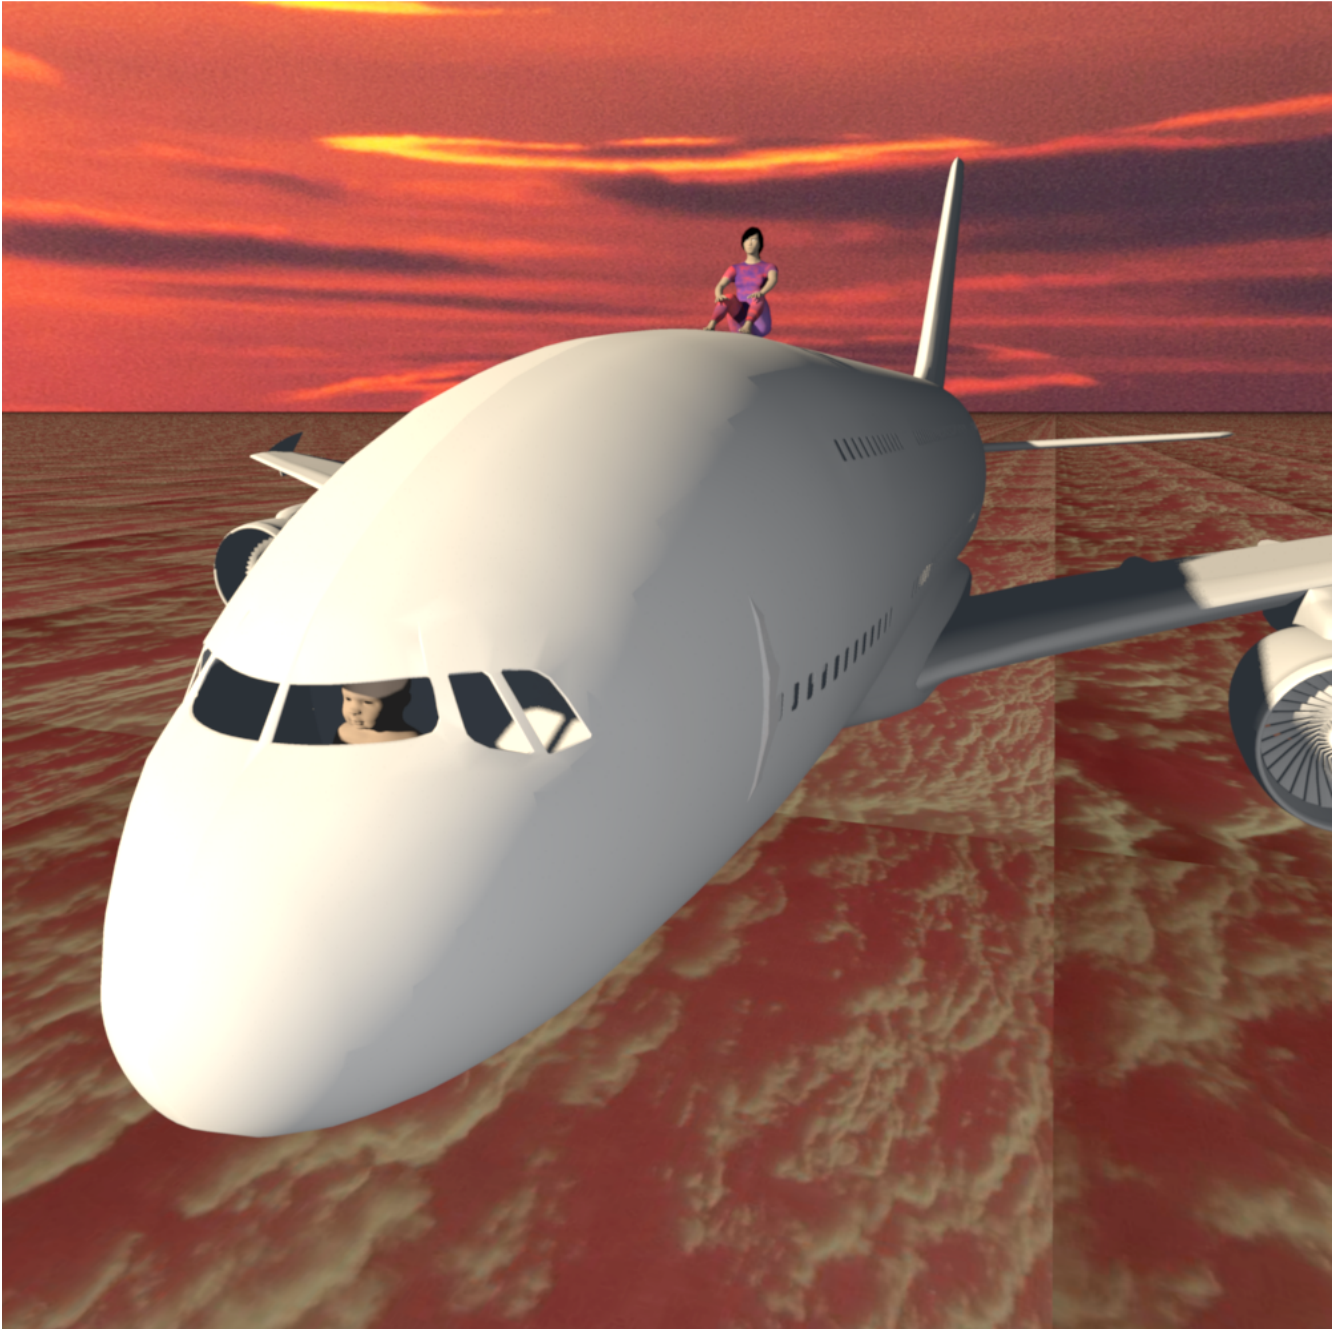

Quiet

Peaceful

Of course, flying is always a transitional state

It can't last forever

